T must be confessed, that those who write against the present Administration, write at fo strange a Rate, and vary their Principles so often, that there is no knowing where to have them, of which there cannot be a more fignal Proof than the Turn given to the Ga-zetteer of December 29, 1740.

e Intent of that Paper (at least if I know my own tent) was to shew the Iniquity of a modern Practice, Charging Corruption on the Legislature. It is e, I made it my Business to express myself more tiously than those Gentlemen are wont to do; befe I reverence the Constitution of my Country, and s unwilling to speak out the infamous Crime I therein our'd to set in its true Light. However, I deliver'd felf in such Terms as I am sure every impartial ader must understand: Neither do I at all doubt that Author of the Remarks upon that Paper knew well bugh what was meant, tho for the fake of fome in-ious Infinuations, he thought proper to substitute other Meaning, and after his old Method falls to chifing the Author. His Questions are indeed so wide of my Design, and the same time so whimsical and so groundless, that I not believe the Publick, or even the Writer himself, ects that I should give him an Answer. Yet to pret any Inferences that may be drawn from their paffing xamin'd, and to shew how little Force there is in all that e People have to say, I will go thro' the whole of his ections, and demonstrate to every Man who has Com-Sense, and will use it, that these Demands have as e to do with Truth and Reason, as with the Paper on ch they have been fastened. In that Paper I said, that e are indebted for this Liberty (the free Exercise of ur Reason) to our Constitution; and that nothing n preserve it but a high Respect for our Constitu-Upon which the Querist demands, Is bis Hor, or his Office of P— M — , any Part of the effictution? Will the free Exercise of our Reason with and to him endanger our Constitution? If it will, what the manifest Conclusion? Can any thing be more exvagant or impertinent? Would not any Man suppose t this Author was at cross Purposes with me? Is re the least Connection between what I had been ing and the Question he puts thereupon? —— But are promised to reply, and I will, how little soever nay be obliged to it. Ministers are and must be a t of our Constitution; they are supposed so to be that famous Maxim, The King can do no Wrong : e Meaning of which, as the greatest of our Lawyers re explained it, is, that acting always by his Mini s, they, and not he, are accountable for the Wrong t is done. By the same Rule that we owe the high-Respect to our Constitution, we owe a proportione Respect to the King's Ministers. As to exercising Reason with regard to any of them, I am sure it is liberty that never was contested, nor, to speak inge-ously, do I think it was ever taken. We have seen seen, Passion, Envy, exercised against a great Minithe than Power. He rules in right of it, and the very afe of this feems to have rendered his Enemies, and is Writer in particular, distracted.

In that Paper I said, 'They, i. e. the Opposition, have informed the Confirmation in have infamously infinuated, that the Constitution is lready subverted: That we are in a State of Coruption, and that of confequence we have only the adow of Freedom.' This Gentleman thereupon beeftly demands, if fuch Things have been infinated By. without Proof or Probability, is it possible that the ple should believe a Lye for Twenty Years together, such a Variety of Scribes have, in that Interval, n employed to undeceive them? If truely, must not that an have a consummate Impudence, who should presume call those, by Crast, unarm'd Traitors, subsendeavour preserve or retrieve the Virtue and Liberty of their Felwhyless? About the Time he talks of, that is wenty Years ago, the Constitution was really in nger from Corruption; and I verily believe it would be suffered a very considerable Alteration, had it not en for the Pairs taken by an Hammahle Person now en for the Pains taken by an Honourable Person now Power. For his Activity then, he has fo many Enees now. He retrieved Publick Credit, fooner, more ectually, than the best Friends to him, and to the blick, thought it possible: And some of those who endanger'd the Government then, are the Men who are at present busiest in endeavouring to unhinge him; which could they effect, we should have them at their old Tricks again. As to the People's believing, fure they would never do it without Proofs; and as to the calling such as have infinuated the highest and basest Reflections, not against any particular Person, but against the Supreme Power in the Nation, what they are call'd in my Paper, I take to be no Offence, because I am fure they are the highest Offenders: Offenders for whom, as yet, the Law has provided no Name, nor do I believe it possible to invent one bad enough.

In that Paper I say, 'The higher any Charge is, the more clear and cogent the Proof ought to be.' Upon this he wisely asks, Who will give Security, that he who undertakes that Proof, Shall not be undone by his own Vi-Hory? And if none can be obtain d, how scandalous is it to challenge a Man to a Combat, whose Hands are ty'd bebind bim? This is a Flourish, and nothing more. For, in the first place, is not every honest Man oblig'd to prove what he afferts, whatever Risk he runs? But befides, might not the Proof as fafely have been produc'd as the Charge? nay, have not the Faction twenty times endeavour'd to give us Proofs, which, upon Examina-tion have been found no Proofs at all. This Exclamation therefore is nothing to the purpose, their Want of Proofs is the sole Reason why we have not had them. If fuch a Charge were well founded, the Laws, the Constitution would be on the Side of the Accusers, the Faction would not then take up with fuch Champions as these. But where there is not so much as the Shadow of Fact, the foulest Tongue and the loosest Pen are fittest for the Cause.

In the fame Paper I had alledg'd, 'The higher the Quality, the stronger the Proof ought to be, because the more noble the Man is, so much the less Probability there is, that he should be guilty of an infamous Offence.' To this he tacks the following Demands: Were not Strafford, Buckingham, Wolfey, &c. Persons of as high Quality, as any Person supposed to be aim'd at, in any late Speech or Writing? And were not every one of these noble Persons obnoxious for their Crimes to the whole People? Nay, did not this high Quality of theirs enable them to be more extensively mischievous? Consequently, was it not reasonable to examine their Conduct the more narrowly, and, if guilty, punish them the more severely? The Inference I intended was, that since the Law reafon'd thus in respect to every noble Person when accused of any Crime whatfoever, it must from thence appear flagrantly unjust to attack the Nobility in general in their Legislative Capacity, in the Manner we have lately seen it done, without pretending to any Proof at all; but this Man's Head runs so on Straffords, Buckingbams, Wolseys, that he sees them where no Mortal else could have thought of them, and will needs convert a Paper wrote expressly in defence of the Constitution, into a personal Apology, which it would have been equally improper and impertinent in me to make. One thing however is very extraordinary, that of all the great Men he has mention'd, not one fell by a Legal Profecution. The Earl of Strafford baffled all his Accusers whilft they attack'd him only according to Law; but when his Accufers turn'd themselves into Judges, and sanctify'd by their Approbation a Series of abfurd Perjury, neither he, nor the most innocent Man in the World, could escape. Buckingbam fell by the Knife of an Affassin, who died with much greater Penitence than I am afraid will be discover'd in the latter End of some Men of the same Stamp. As to Wolfey, his Servant Cromwell baffled a legal Impeachment in the House of Commons, because there wanted Proofs. I say this only in answer to what he has advanced, and not as an Advocate for those great Ministers.

As to the rest of his Raving about the Liberty of the Press, it is so utterly unfounded, that I cannot prevail upon myself to transcribe it. I can fafely lay my Hand upon my Heart, and affirm, that no Man is more cordially a Friend to that Liberty than myself; and, to the best of my Belief, as it never was so freely exercised, so it never was in so little Danger as under the present Administration, who have shewn by their Conduct, that they never thought they had any thing to fear from it. All that I alleged, all that I aimed at in that Paper was, to render it clear that fome late Charges of Corruption took away all political Certainty; and that some Men, under colour of opposing Corruption, were actually endeavouring to introduce Corruption, and to subvert the Conflication. But did I aet like the Scribes in the Service of the Opposition? did I alledge this without Colour, without Proof ! No, I brought one of their own Papers to testify, that in one County they had raised considerable Sums for this Service, and recommended the Example, that is, corrupting for their Service to the whole Nation.

If I was indeed such a Writer as this Man would represent me, I might, under colour of refuting his Scurrility, make the Panegyrick of a truly honourable Perfon, but I know, that in respect to Praise as well as Title, he is content rather to deserve than wear it. As Prophets in their own Country, so Statesmen in their own Times feldom meet with the Reverence they merit; but I dare fay, that impartial Posterity will speak of him as the old Poet Ennius does in the following Lines of that excellent Roman, whom of all Men the present Minister most resembles, > Unus qui nobis cunctando restituit Rem. Non ponebat enim rumores ante Salutem. Ergo magisque, magisque viri nunc Gloria claret. Fabius was flow, but fure, and his Delay Restor'd the tottering State. Now 'twas his Way, To mind his Bufiness, not what People said : He liv'd a Great Man, but he's Greater dead.

They cut and hack'd so furiously that Nobody durst assist or come near them. Macannally's Head was flit down to his Cheek, and he had one of his Arms almost cut off: He was immediately carry'd to the Infirmary, and his Life is despair'd

On the first Notice of your Majesty's Intentions of raifing Troops in America, we were with the earliest who chearfully and unanimously granted a Bounty for encouraging Levies, and raising Five Hundred Men; which, considering our Scarcity of People, was the utmost Number could reasonably be presumed this Prowince could raise and supply. And since your Royal Instruction has been laid before us, we have, with no less Chearfulne's, provided for their Support and Transportation to the Place of Rendezvous; which we pray may be graciously accepted by your Majesty as a Testimony of our fleady Loyalty and firm Attachment to your most facred Person and Government.

Altho' our Situation be remote, and that we live under a Proprietary Government, yet we hope we are not beyond the extensive Influence of your Majesty's just and mild Administration, and think it our greatest Happiness that we can have Recourse to your Royal Person for Protection, whenever we may be put to the Necessity of imploring it.

That indulgent Heaven may shower down its richest Bleffings on your most Sacred Majesty, inspire your Councils, prosper your Arms, defeat your Enemies; and that there never may be wanting a Successor of your Royal Line to reign over us, are the fincere and earnest Withes of your Majesty's faithful Subjects, the Delegates of Maryland.

HE Plague never made fo much Havock here as it does now; for not a Day passes but a great many People are found dead in their Beds or in the Streets; so that Publick Prayers are put up to Heaven to put a Stop to it. The Grand Vizier made an Entertainment t'other Day for e Ambassadors of Great Britain, France, and Venice. Petersbourg, Dec. 15. The Examination which the uke of Courland has undergone, turn'd upon these leads chiefly; viz. What Treasure he had amass'd, nd how much he had fent of it to Foreign Countries : Vhat Private Negociations he carry'd on with certain overs: His indecent Menace of the Princes Anne he Day, when he told her, That if she made the ast Motion that he should have Reason to complain, would fend her back to Germany, and call the Duke Holstein into Russia: His little Regard for Duke nthony-Ulric of Brunswic, whom he put under such a postraint as shew'd that he did not care he should apar in Publick. Mention was also made of the Duess of Courland's arrogant Carriage both to the Prinis Anne, and the Duke her Husband, and of the rin Things she said to that Princess upon more Ocions than one. The Duke has given a fatisfactory newer to every Article, and own'd himself guilty of out of 19. He has made a fair Discovery of his easure, and where it lies. He seems heartily to rent of his Misbehaviour to Princess Anne and the uke of Brunswic, and has sent to beg their Highffes Pardon, as well as for the unfeafonable Airs of foolish Spouse. In short, every body says they th deserve to be put to Death; and that the Duchess egent would be in the right to make them suffer it : at the has declar'd that the is not willing to stain the fancy of her Son's Reign with Blood, that confeently she would not take away the Life of the Duke Courland, or any of his Family, and that all she fir'd was his Banishment; for which there remain'd thing to be done but to find out a proper Place. To-lska was propos'd at first, which is the Capital of Si-ria, where dy'd Prince Menzikoff, the Favourite of Czar Peter I.

They talk now of fending the Duke with his Family Oranienbourg in the Ukraine, twelve Leagues from ofcow, where is a very confiderable Caftle built by e faid Prince Menzikoff, with very fine Gardens. In is Castle 'tis said the Duke is to pass the Residue of his ife, with such a Watch upon him only as that he may ot escape. His Allowance at first indeed was but two ubles a day apiece for himself, his Wife and Children; t the Regent has order'd them to be better us'd, and at they may want for nothing; and she has even al-w'd Plate for their Table, and sent them some Cooks om her Kitchen, and permitted fome of their own rvants to go and attend them. His eldeft Son Peter Biron continues fick. The General Leontief, who as at Iwanogrod to examine some Prisoners taken up the Duke's Account, is also return'd, and has made s Report to the Regent. They are immediately to ceive their Sentences, some for Banishment, others for egradation, and some for Whipping. M. Bestuchess e Minister of the Cabinet, is remov'd from Kexholm Nerva, where are the two Princes Dolghorucki, aose forseited Lives the late Czarina spar'd two Years o. The Prince Trubetzkoy is set out for Couriand, hither the Velt Marshal de Lascy is to repair from Linia, in order to take Possession in the Emperor's the Duke of Courland's Effects. The Velt arshal de Munich is relapsed, but 'tis hop'd he is in no anger.

Stockholm, Dec. 23. Yesterday the General Dyet was pen'd, the Count de Lowenhaupt being Marshal, who as chosen by the Body of Nobles, of whom there hapth'd to be 700 present. The Baron de Robbourg was so proposed, but he had a very few of the Nobles for im. This Count was Marshal or Speaker once before, in 736, when Count Horn was the chief Person in the sinistry. There's great Talk of a Negociation be-

Vienna, Dec. 24. N. S. The Great Duke of Tufthy held a Conference t'other Day, to which the King of Prussia's Minister the Baron de Borck was invited, and there was a great deal of Discourse about the Entrance of his Master's Forces into Silesia; and since that, the Count de Gotter Grand Marshal of his Prussian Majesty's Court arriv'd here from Berlin, with a Gentleman of the War-office, and on the 18th he had a private Audience of the Great Duke, with whom he conferr'd above an Hour, as he did next Day with our Ministers; and that Evening the Person from the War-Office was dispatch'd to Silefia, to acquaint the King his Master in what Temper he found the Great Duke and the Queen's Ministers. The Count de Gotter is fince gone as we are affur'd to Baden, fix Leagues from hence, with a Design to be here again as soon as the War-Office Gentleman returns from Silefia. There is no talking yet with any Certainty of what Measures the Court is taking on account of the Enterprize of the Pruffians, of which we don't yet know what the Court thinks. Mean time it occasions a great Consternation in Silefia, where the General Wenceslaus Wallis, who commands at Great Glogaw, has fent away his Countess for Breslaw, and all the Tribunals of the Province are thut up, and feveral Persons of Distinction are retir'd from the Frontiers farther into the Country. That Affair is become so serious, that fifteen Regiments design'd for that Country have Orders to hasten their March, and for greater Expedition, Waggons are order'd upon the Road for the Use of the Infantry. "Tis not doubted but these will soon be follow'd too by others, and for this purpose several Regiments are sent for from Hungary. All these Forces are to be commanded by the Count de Neuperg, who was to set out Yesterday for those Parts; but we hear that he is order'd to stay here till the Return of a Courier, fent to the King of Prussia, who 'tis faid carries a Declaration from the Queen of Hungary, proposing to enter into a Negociation with regard to his Pretensions in Silesia, on condition nevertheless that his Prussian Majesty first withdraw his Forces from that Province. Breflaw, Dec. 22. N.S. The Regency and Council of Silefia have publish'd a Declaration, dated the 18th Inftant, upon the News of the Entrance of the Prussian Troops into this Duchy, importing in Substance; "That they are very much surpris'd at their Entrance, not knowing that the Queen of Hungary, much less the States of the Duchy have given the least Occasion for it : That his Prussian Majesty's Preparations for some time past, having given them Occasion to inquire into the Defign thereof, they receiv'd fuch strong Assurances of his Intention to live in a perfect good Understanding with her Majesty, that there was no Room for thinking that his Prussian Majesty would attempt to fend his Troops into this Duchy, contrary to the Law of Nature and Nations, and to the Prejudice of the Constitutions of the Empire and of the Golden Bull: That the Regency has neglected nothing to preferve a Friendship and good Neighbourhood with the King of Prussia; which the Marquis de Botta, who was sent from Vienna to Berlin had the necessary Instructions for cultivating in fuch a way as might not prejudice the Rights of the Queen: That the King of Prussia cannot form any Pretentions upon Silefia, which have not been abolish'd by the most solemn Treaties; and that upon the Offer he made of his Troops to the Queen, her Majesty sent Orders to the Marquis de Botta to declare, that she did not mean that the Prussian Troops should enter into Silefia, as long as she did not want their Affistance: That the Queen, as her Affairs then stood, neves expected that the King of Prussia would enter into her Dominions with an armed Force, after the Affurances of Friendship and good Understanding which she receiv'd from that Prince, at the very time too that he was actually employ'd in those Preparations which he now makes use of to disturb the Peace of the Empire, in prejudice of the Treaties of Peace and Constitutions contain'd in the Golden Bull, which expressly forbids the Entrance into a State with an armed Force, without previously communicating the Reasons for it to the Sovereign: That when the Queen first heard the King of Prussia's Military Preparations were design'd against Silesia, she had such an Opinion of his Prussian Majesty's good Intentions that she could not credit it : That being inform'd of the Report that she was agreed upon this Matter with the Prince, and considering that a Report of such a Nature is as prejudicial to her Honour, as to the Prosperity of her Hereditary Kingdoms and Dominions, besides the disadvantageous Suspicions it must occasion both in her own and Foreign Countries, her Majesty sent Orders to the Regency, that as soon as the Prussian Troops were enter'd into this Duchy, upon any Pretence whatfoever, the Regency should cause this Declaration to be publish'd: That moreover as the Queen is persuaded that the King of Prussia has been determin'd to this Proceeding by the Advice of Persons who are set upon Mischief, the hopes from that Prince's Equity that he will not refuse to withdraw them; and that in case he does not comply, she declares to her own Subjects, and to those of Foreign Powers who have any Mortgage upon Silesia, that she does not mean to be answerable for the fatal Consequences that may result from it; protesting before God, before all the States of the Empire, and before all Christendom, that it never was her Intention to connive at the introducing of any Innovations in the Duchy of Silefia." Francfort, Dec. 28. N.S. Nothing occasions more Inquiry here, than the March of the Prussian Troops towards Silesia, which 'tis said are shortly to be considerably augmented; and we are affur'd that it gives more and more Uncasiness to the Court of Vienna. Various are the Sentiments and Arguments upon the King of Prussia's Designs. Some said they were to asfift the Queen of Hungary in case of Need; others that the King of Prussa's View was to recover a Million of Rixdollars which Poland owes to his Majesty upon the City of Elbing: Some have pretended there's a Mystery in this Affair, which nothing but Time will unravel. Several People give out that the Court of Vienna is to fend another Minister to that of Berlin, because the Marquis de Botta could not be admitted to an Audience of the King of Prussia. In fine, there are Advices from Vienna which fay, that immediately after the Arrival of two Expresses from Berlin on the 15th and 46th, his Prussian Majesty's Minister had an Audience which he defir'd of the Queen of Hungary, and declar'd to her, that his Mafter's Troops were only defign'd to curb the Infolence of the Poles, who committed great Disorders on the Frontiers: But all this does not fatisfy the Doubts of the Publick, and the Regency of Silesia has fent to the Court of Vienna for Instructions, whether they are to treat the Prussians as Friends or Enemies.

Berlin, Dec. 27. N.S. The Report that the Prussians had taken Possession of Great Glogaw is groundless; the Generals that command there having oblig'd all the able-bodied Burghers to bear Arms, and caus'd two Gibbets to be fet up in the Market-place, on which they threaten to hang all who shall refuse to act in de-fence of the City. They have oblig'd the very Jewa fettled there to work upon the Fortifications, turn'd the Jesuits Church into a Magazine, and set fire to three Water mills, a Windmill, and three Inns in the Suburbs of the City. They have also resolv'd as soon as the King's Troops come near the Place to pull down 'a Part of the Cathedral, for erecting a Battery. The Marquis de Botta fets out to-morrow for Petersburgh, with a Commission from the Queen of Hungary relating to the Entrance of the Prussian Troops into Silesia.

Hague, Jan. 10. N.S. The States General have appointed the 8th of February next to be observ'd as a General Day of Fasting and Prayer throughout the United Provinces. LONDON. January 6.

Extrall of a Letter from Briftol, dated Jan. 3.

On Thursday Evening arrived the Bristol Merchant, Capt. Chubb, from Jamaica, after eleven Weeks Paffage : she came thro' the Windward Passage with four Sail for this Port, several for North America, and several for London; the Catherine, Curtis; Sherley, Thomfon; Batchelor, Moore; Ann, a large black Ship; Wyndham, Atkinson, in a Snow, being a Spanish Prize, supposed to be taken by Capt. Colt; -, McParland; a Scotch Pink, and two more, Names and Captains unknown.

Capt. Hinlock, a Spanish Prize, put back having forung a Leak; all the above for London sail'd under Convoy of the Falmouth, Capt. Douglas, who left them at Crooked Island well through the Passage, and then return'd to Jamaica. Off Watlings Island they all parted in a hard Gale of Wind about fix Weeks ago.

The Account Capt. Chubb gives of publick Affairs is as follows: Between Jamaica and Donna Maria Bay the Fleet parted, and were fourteen Days in beating up to the Harbour, where Capt. Douglas stopp'd twelve Days to get the Ships together, to be furnish'd with Water; in that time came a Brigantine, dispatch'd from Jamaica by Governor Trelawney in quest of Admiral Vernon, who brought Intelligence that the Ferrol Squadron, confifting of 16 Ships, were arriv'd at Carthagena, and that his Majesty's Ship the Worcester had brought in a Tender on the Ferrol Squadron laden with Gunpowder and other Ammunition; and that his Majesty's Ships the Princess Louisa and Hampton Court, who were cruizing off Carthagena, did arrive at Donna Maria Bay, after some short Engagement with a Ship or Ships of the Perrol Squadron.

Capt. Chubb fays farther, that Capt. Stokes of the Worsley, one of the Ships bound to Bristol, fell in with 4 Men of War from New-York, and 2 from Virginia, having under Convoy the Transports and Forces from America, a little to the Southward of the Navissa, where Admiral Vernon cruifing with 6 Ships, 2 Firefhips, and a Tender, were likewise met with.

Extract of a Letter from Jamaica, dated Oct. 15.

Two Days ago arrived the Squirrel Man of War, and Austria Storeship, from New York: They brought 100 Marines raised there, and the rest were to imbark the Day after for the Capes of Virginia, in order to join those raised there, and are expected here in a little Time. The same Day the Norwich brought in a large Man of War French Snow, bound from France to Cape Francois. She refus'd to fend her Boat aboard, and fir'd into the Norwich. The Captain of her gives us fome bad News, but we hope without Foundation; he fays the Spaniards have 6 or 7 Ships of the Line at Porto Rico, to intercept the Transports under Lord Cathcart.

Admiral Vernon failed about a Fortnight ago with 200 of the Independent Companies, and 300 Negroes raised on this Island. He was seen off Hispaniola, in order, as 'tis thought, to join Lord Cathcart.

A Privateer Sloop from New-York, cruifing off Carthagena, had taken three Dutch Sloops fitted out of Curasoe, loaded with Cordage and Provisions for Car-
